THINKING OUT LOUD

By H. M. L., SR.

It is not every community that remembers to honor its older citizens who have striven for the well-being of their neighbors and the upuilding of their village or city. It is not every town that gathers its people together to do honor to its leaders who have fought the good fight for decency, order and cleanliness, whose lifelong effort has been devoted, in short, to make his community a better place to live.

And it is not every civic leader, who lives to be 84 years whose mind still functions clearly and precisely, whose physical strength shows little diminution, whose faculties are still those of a vigorous man of, well, say 60 years.

But in Dr. Chester W. Chapman and in Nevada City, we have both these very exceptional conditions, a witnessed Saturday night, when 68 men and women sat down to dinner in the National Hotel to honor a former mayor and city councilman, a lifetime member of the fire department, and whose crowning achievement, if such a one could be said to have crowning achievement, was erection of the Donner Monument at the foot of Donner Lake.

Whatever art critics may say of the monument, it is a massive testimonial to the heroic Donner Party, and it was largely built through the energy, patriotism and dogged determination of Dr. Chapman while he was chairman of the Landmarks Committee of the Native Sons of the Golden West.

He was undaunted and determined during the interminable chatter of so-called art critics, and of the desire of many people, some of them Native Sons, who wanted the monument placed in Golden Gate Park, because as it was then said, in 1918, that more people would see it in the park than at Donner Lake. Now, however, it is doubtful if one fifth as many people would see it in Golden Gate Park as now view it annually, passing into and out of California over Highway 40. California owes that monument in large measure to Dr .Chapman.

Then there were those nine years when Dr. Chapman was mayor of Nevada City. During his term the earthquake and fire destroyed San Francisco's business district and much of its residential area. Dr. Chapman went down there as mayor of Nevada City and as an official of the Native Sons and did yeoman service for several weeks.

Another service during his term as mayor was to get Broad Street paved, all except one small section belonging to a livery stable owner. Most of the money was contributed by the Nevada City merchants on a voluntary basis. The paving, we can remember with nostalgia, was done at $1.00 a square foot, and it is still holding up fairly well.

In step with his inspiring devotion to the ideals and purposes of the Native Sons, and to the betterment of his native Nevada City, Dr. Chapman and his late wife found time to rear a fine family of four sons and a daughter, all of whom did their bit in winning the late war. Whether his devotion to his family sprang from his devotion to the best interests of his native city, or the other way around, no one can measure.

If Dr. Chapman ever gave himself a thought, or his future, there was no noe handy to record it. He was always working for an objective, worthy of his time, worthy of the community in which he was reared, and worthy of those precepts on which he was reared.

At any rate, the outpouring Saturday night at dinner, and later of about 250 people in the Elementary School Auditorium, was a splendid testimonial to a man who had given himself without stint to his community and his country, over a long life.

SEARCH FOR ELMER ROOT IS SLOWING

NEVADA CITY: Mrs. Ray Fontz, wife of the ditch tender of the Nevada Irrigation District, who lives at Camp 19, last night stated that the search for Elmer Root, Jr., has prectically ceased.

Elmer Root, Sr., the young man's father, stated he expected to return next Friday. But yesterday there was no one searching for the fisherman who made camp with Norman F. Davis of Roseville Saturday afternoon, May 29, and shortly thereafter disappeared.

Undersheriff Otis Hardt said yesterday that he understood the search had been discontinued except for the week-ends when he thought friends of the missing man might undertake to continue the search.

A NEW BROOM

The old saw "A new broom sweeps clean" has a particularly apt application here in Nevada City. A short time ago, the people elected three new members to the city council.

Soon after they took office, the brooms of the city street crew began busily polishing the streets every morning at 6 A. M.

As a result, our town is developing its own 'new look', a clean and spritely appearance that is extremely gratifying to everyone.

City councilmen have a thankless, payless job. Their reward comes only in a sense of having done their public duty and, perhaps, also in such instances as this, when appreciation of their work is publicly expressed.

Another important achievement of the council is the improvement of the baseball diamond, which is now in prime shape.

So to new members, Harry F. Sofge, Merle Headley, and Thomas H. Taylor, as well as incumbents Arthur Innis and Mayor Albert S. Bates, we say, congratulations on a job well done!

(Note: This is not to be construed as a negative reflection on any former members of the city council, who almost invariably have done an excellent job in meeting city problems during their terms of unselfish public service.) H. M. L., Jr.

LOCAL GIRL GIVES EYE TO BLIND WOMAN

GRASS VALLEY: Wana Lou Unruh, 17, Grass Valley High School sophomore, residing on Meadowbrook Lane, Peardale District, has been identified as the girl who gave the cornea of one of her eyes to Mrs. Violet Choate, 26, totally blind, of Port Townsend, Washington.

The transplanting was done in the University of California Hospital, San Francisco. Miss Unruh was suffering from an infection of one eye, which did not affect the cornea. The eye was removed by Dr. R, A. Montano in the Marysville clinic, carefully packed and dispatched by plane to San Francisco. Arrangements for a dual operation were made by American Red Cross and the University. Mrs. Choat must wait several weeks before she will know if the oeration was successful.

ROOT'S MOTHER OFFERS A $1,000 REWARD

NEVADA CITY: Mrs. Elmer F. Root, Sr., mother of Elmer Root, Jr., of Sacramento, who has been missing since last Saturday afternoon when he disappeared while fishing in the Bowman Lake country, announced she would offer a reward of $1,000 to anyone finding her son. Mrs. Root lives at 2411 L Street, Sacramento, and her son is employed in Sacramento by the telephone company.

Sheriff Richard W. Hoskins stated he would not be responsible for persons who enter the area, particularly hazardous and dangerous to those without experience, who go without authority.

The sheriff has had a posse out in the search every day since Sunday morning. Besides the sheriff's posse, it is estimated that at least 40 men have searched a wide area, involving Fall and Rucker Creeks and the region between the two.

Root and Norman L. Davis of Roseyille on Saturday camped at Camp 19, home of the N. I. D. ditch tender. Root proposed to fish down Bowman canal then cross over and fish Fall Creek up stream. Davis fished up stream on Bowman canal and crossed over and fished down Fall Creek. Davis failed to meet Root and notified the sheriff's office that night.

THE - Diary of a 49'er

FROM THE BOOK EDITED BY C. L. CANFIELD

We have not got very much baggage to bother us. I have packed up all of the old letters and home trinkets and will send them by express. What little stuff we leave behind in the way of crockery, cooking utensils, etc., the neighbors are welcome to. I will give Calkins my shotgun and Charlie Barker my banjo. I have a pride in keeping up this diary to the last, and will write in it again next Sunday and carry it with me in my saddle bags. We are going to have a blow-out at the Hotel de Paris Wednesday night, a sort of farewell to those of our friends that we care to say good-bye to. Marie and the landlady are arranging for it, and we will surely have a good feast.

JUNE 13, 1852—There are only six more blank pages in this book and I don't think I will fill them, neither will I start another one. I don't think I have written anything here that I would be ashamed to have my wife read. Pard has gone over it from start to finish and says that I ought to keep it until I am old and gray-haired. Then it will take on a new meaning and I will regret those glorious days when "youth was mine." I don't exactly catch his meaning, but it is certain that I shall look back to the old creek and the memories of it and its surroundings, and it will be a pleasant remembrance.

We had our dinner Wednesday evening and there were seventy-seven of us altogether, including the Saleratus Ranch boys and our neighbors. Marie looked in and helped the landlady a while .There was real champagne, a couple of baskets of it, and before I knew it Pard had me by one arm and Marie by the other and the guests stood up and drank a toast to France and America and the pair whose prospective alliance would

Just Wonderin'

I Wonder who's leading the race
For that very uncomfortable chair,
And burdens that only a man
Of infinite courage can bear.
Now is it the glory they seek—
The honor, the prestige and fame,
Or is it the sincere desire
To brighten the nation's good name?

I Wonder very often why men who have gained honorable positions and whose opportunities of service are large enough for one mere mortal, jump right up and go running after the presidential nomination every time the race is scheduled to begin.

I Wonder just what goes on in a presidential candidate's mind, when he heroically offers himself for that greatest and hardest of all jobs. Of course, he appraises himself and inspects his qualifications for the office and he must have a most exalted opinion of himself and his attributes, when he nominates himself and says, "I am the man." He must love work for work's sake and stand ready to sacrifice himself in various ways and to take all the abuse that his opponents are sure to heap upon him. He must, if he is a sincere man and a true American, believe that he is capable of becoming the successful leader of a great nation and perhaps of the entire world. It might also be said, that an intrepid candidate is afflicted with obsessions of grandeur. However that may be, he soon finds that many of his fellow countrymen do not see him as he sees himself; but even when he becomes aware of that fact, he seldom loses confidence in himself. He still insists with growing emphasis, "I am the man." I would like to see the inner workings of a candidate's mind.

It is a good thing to know ourselves and to properly evaluate our abilities; Socrates told us that; but times and conditions change so rapidly, that in some instances we may be led to think we are more than we are. Take Solomon for example; he had an inflated ego and seemingly agreed with those who looked upon him as the wisest of mortals, so he stood right up and declared, "there is nothing new under the sun."

Poor old Solomon, he had no way of knowing what the forces of evolution and the ingenuity of man would do in all lines of human activity. There were prophets in his day, but none capable of telling him or foretelling the wonders of the machine age or the terrors of this atomic day of ours. He may have had dreams in the night, but in none of them was he confronted with an automobile, a bagless vacuum cleaner, or a mechanical dishwasher. He saw no bombers in the sky, no undersea craft, no machine guns and his knowledge of modern surgery, medicine and sanitation was completely nil. Knowledge grows from more to more and those events which are hidden in the folds of the future may overturn our smug belief in our own infallibility and force us to revise our appraisals of our selves and our attainments. It behooves us to keep our minds flexible and stand ready to change them at a moment's notice.

Uncle Silas says: "Little Jimmie wants to know if all candidates are good men; I told him they had to be, or else."

NEVADA COUNTY Historical Society Notes

THE STORY OF SWEETLAND
by Ada Perry Landsburg

Editor's Note: Ada Perry Landsburg was born in the little town of Sweetland, January 30, 1859. She was the daughter of John and Lydia Perry, and spent many years there as well as in Relief Hill, North Bloomfield, and Nevada City. She and her husband moved to Kuna, Idaho, to be near her daughter, Linda. Some years after her husband passed away, she had the misfortune to fall, and has been bedridden for more than ten years.

THE EXODUS

It began quite early. The Old Timers leaving for various reasons. The mulls, Evans and Danuals families for the Bay District, the Charles Davis family to settle in Oregon, the McCracken family to make their home in Seattle which was then only a small town, the George Davis and David Davis families in or near San Francisco. William Mener and family to North San Juan, later to Pasadena while it was a boom town. The Perrys to North Bloomfield, the Moore family to Nevada State. The rest in their last resting place in the cemetery. Also Steve Wood and wife are laid there to rest. The Slacks removed to Oregon. In 1883, H. O. Hiscox, after his wife's death, had been sent to what we believe is now called Columbia, South America. He was delayed on his journey as there was a war on the Isthmus at the time, but finally arrived at his destination and three days later passed away and was buried there, eleven months after his wife's death. The Warners removed to Oakland.

In 1900, the last time we were in Sweetland, but few of the old time friends remained. James Wood, who still owned the store and postoffice, James O. Sweetland, who worked for him, Emma Barnum, (her mother had passed away), Pete Graham whose wife was dead ,and children married and gone to make their homes elsewhere; Fremont Wood, son of James Wood, and family, and the Merriam family, were all that were left of the "old time" friends in the town. In the homes north of town were the Isbesters, the Tabers and Ransomes. The Tabors later removed to Grass Valley and the Ransomes to some place near San Francisco Bay Region. In 1903 the youngest son of the Hiscox family with his family became residents of Nevada City and years later was laid to rest in Pine Grove Cemetery near his oldest son who had preceded him. Later his wife also was buried there. Three of their children are well known, at least by name, to the residents of Nevada City: Earl Hiscox, Game Warden. Lloyd Hiscox, employee at the postoffice and Mrs. Irma Atkins, one of Nevada City's valued teachers.

From what we hear, we understand that two of the daughters of E. B. Ransome and wife are also residents of Nevada City. Mrs. Helen Sawyer and Mrs. Louise Fox.

THE HOME OF THE DEAD

The little cemetery before spoken of contains comparatively few graves. One reason for that we believe, is because the plot was never cared for. It was too high to be irrigated easily, and a second reason, because the ditch which brought irrigating water had been neglected and allowed to fill up, and every one too busy or otherwise occupied to do the necessary repair work. Many took their dead to North San Juan and interred them in the cemetery there, as it was always cared for. The Catholics always took their departed friends to the Catholic Cemetery at North San Juan for according to their belief no good Catholic must lie in unconsecrated ground.

The fire which swept through the town some years ago also destroyed the wooden markers in the cemetery. All markers were of wood save one, a stone quarried from the native rock, was put up by the father at the head of the grave of a child in early days and probably is there yet. On that plot two other graves have been added and now contains the graves of Mrs. Archie Moore, Alfred and Wallace Moore, (children). Directly north but a few feet away are the graves of some of the Charles Davis family. Clara Davis and her young son, Mrs. Charles Davis and infant daughter, Minnie and Gilbert Wood, Mrs. Harriet Wood and Stephen Wood, all members of the same family. In line with these are the members of the J. W. Wood family, Mrs. Elmira Wood ,James Wood,, Frank Wood (a son), Frank Wood, (a grandson), Fremont Wood, son of James and Elmira Wood. Still farther to the north a child of Mrs. and Mrs. J. C. Broderick, buried very near the northern boundary of the cemetery.

A second row of graves beginning east of the Moores lot contains the graves of Otis Hiscox, his wife, William Hiscox and Alfred Hiscox, grandsons, and sons of H. O. Hiscox and wife.

Some distance to the north are the graves of one whom the writer has forgotten. Next the grave of Elijah Pease, next a man by the name of Bell, old timer's first name unknown to the writer, next a small brother of Emma Barnum.

In the middle of the cemetery, three graves in which Mrs. James O. Sweetland and daughter, Carrie, and we believe, James O. Sweetland are buried.

In the south east corner is the grave of a ne'er do well, the victim of a tragedy, James Rogers. tim of a tragedy, James Rodgers.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Who is this Man?

Now and then, in the pages of the Clarion, I run a biographical quiz, under the heading of "Who Is This Man?" For instance ...

"He was one of the earliest lovers in American history...

"And yet he was too shy to court a woman outright...

"He came to the New World on the Mayflower...

"A cooper to repair the beer barrels accompanying the Pilgrims...

"Who is this man?"

I thought that everybody was stumped. But not Ma Hoskins, who returned the clipping to me with "John Alden" on it. She recognized all the clues—including that reference to "beer" and "cooper."

For Ma—who's read her history, knows that beer as the beverage of moderation, is as old in this land of ours as the never-ending American search for tolerance which brought the Pilgrims over to this country in the first place.

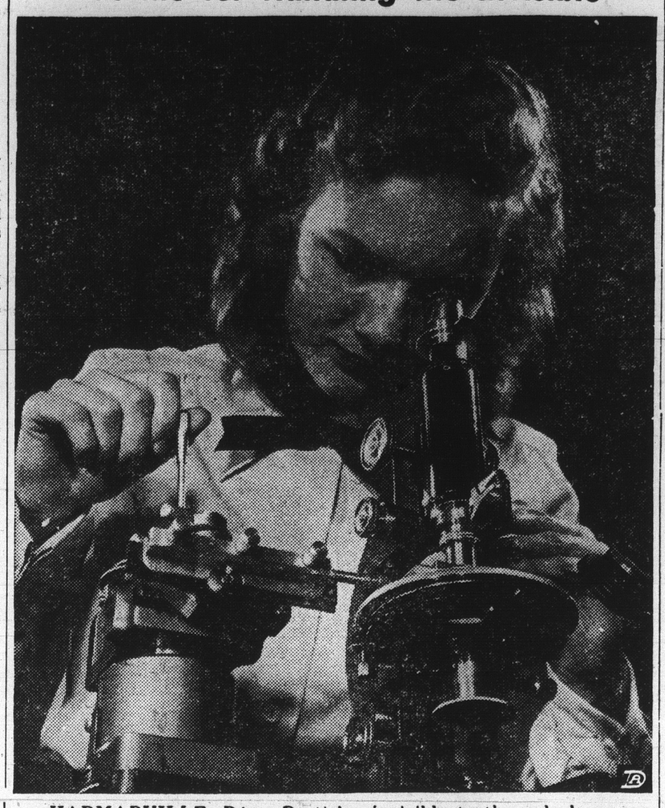
Machine for Handling the Invisible



HARMARVILLE, PA.— Particles invisible to the naked eye are handled by this wizard-like machine of modern science, called the micro-manipulator. The hand lever operates a hydromatic drive directing probes, rakes and shovels so tiny they work within a drop of water as would ordinary instruments in a beaker or test tube. A humidified cell prevents evaporation of the minute sample beneath the microscope lens. Photo was taken at Gulf Oil's micro-laboratory where research into the infinitely small is speeding progress toward meeting the world's demands for oil.

surely bring happiness to a representative of each country. I was too embarrassed to speak and the champagne choked me—it was the first time I had tasted it—but Marie bubbled over with glee and said, "Oh! zey are ze good boys, and in our hearts we will nevair, no nevair, forget zem," and then she ran away and was seen no more that night.

After she had gone Pard got up and made what he called his confession. He explained why he had taken the name of Anderson and, while he regretted the deceit, still there was no man in the world that he was ashamed to look in the face and he could only beg their pardon and return them a watch that did not bear his name. You should have heard the shouting, everybody yelling: "No! No! Keep it and we will give you another one," crowding around and grasping his hand, and then McCalkins yelled out: "What's in a name, anyhow?" Barker struck up:

"For he's a jolly good fellow."

And we made the old hotel ring. Then we marched around the table, singing:

"For he was a dandy man,
With his rocker, pick and pan,
And it took him quite a while Before he made his pile."

I don't remember much more about it .The table began to swim around, my head got dizzy. Pard took me out in the air, heled me on my horse, and we started home. My! I was sick on the way and the next morning my head ached to split. If that is the way champagne makes one feel, I don't want any more of it.

Pard and I sat out under the old pine tree tonight for the last time—we will be busy tomorrow getting our traps into town—and neither one of us was in the best of spirits, although as far as we can see there is nothing but happiness ahead of us. The moon beams shimmered down through the pine needles, the frogs croaked in the creek, a coyote barked up on the hill, the echo of the hoot of an owl drifted up from the trail. We have listened to the same sounds every night for years, but somehow this evening it seemed as if they were all saying "Good-bye."

BILL AND COO AT BROADWAY THEATER

NEVADA CITY: Playing at the Broadway Theater Friday and Saturday, June 11 and 12, is "Bill and Coo," a bird picture in Trucolor. This is a novel and unusual feature film starring a group of trained love birds which should delight youthful audiences.

It is a bird fantasy photographed in trucolor. It is composed of a series of sequences performed by 273 love birds.

The film opens with a short prologue with George Burton and Elizabeth Walters, but in the main film there are no human performers.

The story tells of a romance of Bill and Coo, residents of Chirpendale. The villain is a black crow who tries to plunder the village.

A particularly interesting portion is the circus sequence, where many of the birds perform remarkable feats.
